Drawing the Line.

A good story is told in Missouri at the expense of its once famous governor, Claiborne P. Jackson. Before he solved the enigma of love he had married five sisters in reasonable lapses of consecutiveness. After one wife had been lost and appropriately mourned he espoused another, and he kept his court within a narrow circle of his own relatives, for he rather liked the family.

The antiquated father of these girls was almost deaf, and when the governor went to this octogenarian to ask for his surviving daughter the following conversation ensued:

"I want Lizze."

"Eh?"

"I want you to let me have Lizze."

"Oh, you want Lizze, do you? What for?"

"For my wife."

"For life?"

"I want to marry—her."

"Oh, yes. Just so. I hear you, boy."

"I'm precious glad you do," muttered the governor.

"Well," slowly responded the veteran, "you needn't halloo so that the whole neighborhood knows it. Yes, you can have her. You've got 'em all now, my lad, but for goodness' sake, if anything happens to that 'ere poor misguided gal, don't come and ask me for the old woman!"

Jackson solemnly promised that he never would.

MY MORTALITY.

"The wit, 'Mortal, thy life is but a span.' And yet I feel that air and earth and sky are ever mine, even forevermore. That I and mine can never, never die."

And yet I know, how well I know, that in the future somewhere hidden lies A day, the day of days, which has for me A moment supreme, when I shall close my eyes

To open them on this my world no more.

When friends will fold my hands upon my breast And sadly say: "Dear soul, her work is done. Let us now lay her gently to her rest."

Springtime with bud and bloom will come and go.

The busy world will still rush madly on. The earth and air and sky will be for those Who will not know that I have come and gone. —Dr. Grace Peckham Murray in Harper's Bazar.

GUNS FOR OLD GLORY.

The First Foreign Salute Given to the American Flag.

The little Ranger ran slowly between the frowning French frigates, looking as warlike as they. Her men swarmed like bees into the rigging, and her colors ran up to salute the flag of his most Christian majesty of France, and she fired one by one her salute of 43 guns, says Sarah Orne Jewett in The Atlantic.

There was a moment of suspense. The wind was very light now. The powder smoke drifted away, and the flapping sails sounded loud overhead. Would the admiral answer back or would he treat this bold challenge like a handkerchief waved at him from a pleasure boat? Some of the officers on the Ranger looked incredulous, but Paul Jones still held his letter in his hand. There was a puff of white smoke, and the great guns of the French flagship began to shake the air—two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine—and then were still save for their echoes from the low hills about Carnac and the great Druid Mount of St. Michael.

"Henry, my dear," you may tell me the men that take the salute of the king of France to our republic and the first high honor to our flag," said the captain proudly to his steersman, but they were all huzzing now along the Ranger's decks, that little ship whose name shall never be forgotten while her country lives.

The captain lifted his hat and stood looking up at the flag.

"We hardly know what this day means," he said soberly to his officers, who came about him, "but believe we are at the christening of the greatest nation that was ever born into the world. The day shall come when America, republic though she may be, will salute no foreign flag without receiving gun for gun!"

Origin of "Whig."

Several reasons have been assigned to account for the word "Whig," universally known to all the English speaking people. By some the word is supposed to be a contraction of a longer one, "whiggamore," which in some parts of England and Scotland, especially Scotland, signifies a drover or herder.

It was in 1679 that the word first became common in the British Isles, when the struggle was in progress between the peasantry and the aristocracy to have or not to have the bill passed by parliament to exclude the Duke of York from the line of succession. All who were opposed to placing the duke in the line of succession were derisively called "whiggamores," or "drovers," just as the city duds of today speak of the "grangers," the "grays," the "chm whisks" and the "hayseders."

But Scotch tradition gives altogether a different reason for the existence of the word. It is this: During the early religious wars in Scotland the weakest of the factions used the words "We Hope in God" as a motto. The initials of these words were placed on their banners thus, "W. H. I. G." and soon all the followers of that clan were given the title of "Whig," which was afterward attached as a party nickname.

Journalistic Errors.

I do not allude to what are obviously mere misprints, such as when The Morning Post announced at the head of its fashionable intelligence that Lord Delmonico had gone down into Hampshire with a party of friends to shoot peasants, but I refer to blunders due to crass ignorance of a pretentious order. Perhaps the best instance was when one of the "young lions" of The Daily Telegraph in a leading article enumerated the great masters of Greek sculpture as Phidias, Praxiteles and Milo, ignorant of the fact that Milo is not a sculptor, but an island.

The Times was even worse when, in its article on Austria, it devoted a whole leader to discussing why Prussia had joined the solviter. The Saturday Review once explained at great length that the population might be nourished gratuitously on young lambs if killed unweaned before they had begun to crop grass, having therefore cost nothing to feed. Many other instances will doubtless occur to your readers.—Notes and Queries.

A Mixed Wedding Party.

"The college roommate of a friend of mine was engaged to a lady in New York," writes the Rev. D. M. Steele in his article on "Some People I Have Married" in The Ladies' Home Journal. "His people are Congregationalists, but while at Yale he became a Unitarian. Her parents are Roman Catholics, but she was a member of the United Culture society at Carnegie hall. In compliance with her mother's wish he asked five different priests to marry them, but all refused. In despair he came for me. I married them, an Episcopalian, with the ritual service in a Presbyterian chapel. The Roman Catholic brother of the bride and the Congregational sister of the groom were present. This sister acted as one witness; the other witness was a Jewess."

Careful Statement.

"Was this man Dennis an entire stranger to you?" asked the cross-examining counsel of a witness in an important case.

"Sorr?" said the witness, whose stupid face was crossed with wrinkles of anxiety, for he had been warned to be cautious and exact in his answers.

The lawyer repeated his question.

"Well, no, sorr," said the witness, with a sudden gleam of enlightenment. "He couldn't be that, for he had but the war arm, sorr, but he was a partial stranger, sorr. O'd niver seen him before."—Youth's Companion.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which, when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "Snuffles the Guaranteed Catarrh Cure," and is sold at the extremely low price of one dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation, stops the discharges, and is also wonderfully effective to relieve hay fever or cold in the head.

Catarrh, when neglected, often leads to consumption—"Snuffles" will save you if you use it at once. It is an ordination which does not belong to his claim. It is like a white man trying to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if you according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure."

The Migratory Sheep Tax.

Judge Morrow of the United States Circuit Court in San Francisco this week issued an order which will be of great interest to sheepmen who use mountain ranges during the summer. Several of the mountain counties have a special tax of 10 cents per head on all sheep and lambs in the county owned by non-residents. The case in question was brought by J. P. Flanagan against Sierra county, and August Burch, License Collector of that county, for an order restraining them from collecting this tax on 30,000 sheep on plaintiff.

Judge Morrow granted the order on the ground that the tax is unconstitutional, as it discriminates in favor of resident owners and does not impose a license on hogs, cattle or swine grazing in that county and owned by non-residents.—Galt Gazette.

Wesley a Book Lover.

Wesley was to the end of his life a lover of a good book. Though the Bible was his chief study, he would have agreed with Matthew Arnold that a man who did not know other books could not know that book as it should be known. He constantly urged his preachers to read. "You can never be a deep preacher without reading," he used to say, "any more than a thorough Christian." To a young man who held his work as an evangelist left him no time for reading he wrote: "Hence your talent in preaching does not increase. It is just the same as it was seven years ago. It is lively, but there is little variety. There is no compass of thought." What would not some of us give for that volume of Shakespeare, annotated throughout by his hand, which John Pauson destroyed after his death for fear of scandalizing the weaker brethren?—Temple Bar.

Don't be a thoroughbred.

A thoroughbred is well enough in cattle and dogs, but very disgusting among men, for the reason that among men a thoroughbred means a man who devotes too much time to having fun, to being a good fellow. Make a specialty of reliability, industry, fairness. Make your specialty a worthy one. Instead of seeing how late you can stay out at night go to bed at regular hours. Sleep will do you more good than a good time. There is no better man than the good citizen, the good husband, the good father, the good son. A thoroughbred is never noted in these directions.—Atchison Globe.

Made a Bad Matter Worse.

The honeymoon was over, and they were comfortably settled in their little home. The husband, returning from business, was grieved to find his little wife crying bitterly.

"Oh, George," she sobbed, "a dreadful thing has happened! I had made you a beautiful pie all by myself, and Fido went and ate it!"

"Well, never mind, my dear," he said cheerfully. "We can easily afford another dog."—Exchange.

How To Gain Flesh

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of SCOTT'S EMULSION. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food, which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking Queer Indian Beliefs.

There is an odd feature in the theology of the small Indian tribe of the Bella Coola, which inhabit British Columbia in about latitude 52. They believe that there are five worlds, one above the other, and the middle one is our own world, the earth. Above it are two heavens, and under it are two underworlds. In the upper heaven is the supreme deity, who is a woman, and she doesn't meddle much with the affairs in the second world below her. The zenith is the center of the lower heaven, and here is the house of the gods, in which live the sun and the rest of the deities.

Our own earth is believed to be an island swimming in the ocean. The first underworld from the earth is inhabited by ghosts who can return when they wish to heaven, from which place they may be sent down to our earth. If then they misbehave again, they are cast into the lower of the underworlds, and from this horrible and gloomy traveler return.

The Bella Coolas are worshippers, for Senex, the sun, the master of the house of gods, who is also called "the father" and "the sacred one," is the only deity to whom the tribe pray. Each family of the Bella Coola has its own traditions and its own form of the current traditions, so that in the mythology of the tribe there are countless contradictions. When any one not a member of the clan tries to tell a tradition which does not belong to his clan, it is like a white man trying to tell another's joke—he is considered as appropriating the property right which does not belong to him.

Hard Ducks to Kill.

The screaming wallow is a hard duck to kill. Its hide is very tough and is thickly covered with feathers and down. Besides the bird is a great diver, one of the kind that used to "dive at the flash" when hunted with the old arm that flashed when fired. It is of very little value for table use, being so tough. The only way to manage it at all is to skin it and parboil it in a big pot with plenty of water. The negroes make caps of wallow skins.

"They are great ducks for diving," says a well known Trud Avon river proger.

"They can dive quicker, so down they go. They remain under water longer and come up farther away than any other duck that frequents our waters. I remember once I succeeded in killing a wallow, and, being short of game for the table, I determined to cook my bird. I got a negro to skin it, giving him the hide for his trouble. After being cleaned we put it in a great pot full of water and under it kindled a hot fire. After a while I wanted to see how the cooking of my duck progressed, and lifted the top off the boiling pot, but there was so much steam escaping I could not see into the pot and struck a match over it. The blamed wallow, sir, dived at the flash of the match. It disappeared and has never been seen since."—Baltimore Sun.

A Lesson to Humorists.

One cannot safely assume in these days that there is a region in which such and such a Journal is not read. Recently a certain humorist needed a rest and went and stopped in a cottage in a remote village by the sea. His sitting room opened on the kitchen, where his landlady, a woman widely esteemed as a person of great acumen and a maker of phrases, was wont to receive the neighbors. He listened and put both his landlady and neighbors into some amusing sketches which were promptly published in a London magazine. A month or two went by. Then one afternoon he came back to the cottage to meet and cover before an indignant matron, who told him, among other things, that he had one hour in which to pack his traps and quit the village. She was not going to have an ever-drepper in her house, and she said that a significant hint on the effect that the people of the village were of the same opinion and might be betrayed into an attempt to give a forcible demonstration of their views.—London Post.

New They Are Married.

A beautiful young man went three times to ask a beautiful young lady if she would be the partner of her joys and sorrows and other household furniture, but each time his heart failed him, and he took the question away unopened.

She saw the anguish of his soul and had compassion on him. So the next time he came she asked him if he had thought to bring a screwdriver with him.

He blushed and wanted to know what for.

"In the fullness of her heart," said she, "she did not know but that he would want to screw up his courage before he left."

He took the hint and the girl—Pearson's Weekly.

The Jaw of an Otter.

You can find an example of nature's adaptation of the jaw to use in the case of certain carnivora, like the otter—a big weasel that has acquired aquatic habits. The jaws of such beasts are so fitted in the sockets that dislocation is impossible. In some instances you can, even after the animal is dead, separate the jaw from the head. This arrangement is evidently designed to enable the beast to bite to the greatest advantage without danger that the chewing apparatus will come loose.

Cause of Thought.

"You look thoughtful tonight, Smith," remarked Brown as he stretched himself on two chairs.

"Yes," said Smith. "I have just got a note from the landlady."

"What does she say?"

"She says that I must pay my board at once, or her daughter will use me for bread of promise. I'm thinking what I'd better do."—Trib-Bite.

STORIES OF LINCOLN.

THE TINY SOLDIER WHO ASSISTED AT THE PUBLIC LEEVE.

Old Abe's Narrative About How the Flat Bottomed Boat Went Aground and How She Got Safely Back into the Ohio River.

On one occasion a little drummer boy, securing leave of absence, accompanied a sergeant to a public levee that "Old Abe" was holding at the White House. They went early, and when President Lincoln appeared and the handshaking began they were not long in reaching him.

The tall man, almost a giant in physical proportions, looked down with an amused smile at the tiny drummer boy, who appeared hardly 10 years of age. Grasping the little fellow's right hand, the president suddenly reached out his left, swung the boy off his feet and set him gently down on a small table beside him.

"Abe, my little soldier," he said, laughing, "you shall help 'Uncle Abe' review this line today, and if your superior officer objects, why, I'll prolong your leave of absence!"

Lincoln asked the boy his age, place of residence, regiment and where he was on duty. Then, as some of the more important officers of the army or navy, members of congress or of the executive department, came to pass in the line, the president would graciously introduce his young assistant, with whom they were required to shake hands as well as with himself.

When the reception was over, President Lincoln took the boy into his private apartments and introduced him to Mrs. Lincoln. After entertaining him at luncheon he dismissed him with a brief note to the commanding officer of the hospital where he was then stationed, telling why the boy's leave of absence had been extended.

Lincoln's geniality and willingness at all times to hear or to tell a good story were conspicuous traits, not always agreeable to some of his able but worried and irritable advisers.

On one occasion a sergeant had a squad of men at river unloading supplies from an Ohio river steamboat that in some mysterious manner had made its way from the interior to the coast waters of Virginia. It was a flat bottomed boat, drawing not more than three feet of water when loaded and hardly dampening its plank bottom when light. It was propelled by a horizontal stern wheel, driven by a small upright engine. Boats of that type were common on the Ohio, which runs almost dry at some seasons. They were known as "Pittsburgers" and were fabled to navigate freely in a heavy dew.

The sergeant's men were hard at work carrying rations ashore from this craft when suddenly they stopped and sent up a lusty cheer. A little tuglike steamer had pulled up alongside, and from it stepped a tall, awkward man dressed in rusty black and wearing a capless silk hat. The sergeant recognized the president and saluted.

"Your boat is well named, sergeant," said the latter gravely.

The soldier was puzzled. He did not know that the steamer had a name and said so.

The president took him by the arm and led him back on the tug. There the stern of the "Pittsburgher" loomed above them, and on its dirty white surface a fat, balding man in a yard long appeared the single word, Mist.

"Yes," said Lincoln, "it's very well named indeed, sergeant. All those boats need a mist, and they'll run anywhere."

"Years ago," he continued, "I was attending court in Cairo, Ills. when the Ohio was so low that all the water there was between its banks was what had spilled over from the Mississippi. Those 'Pittsburgers' were passing, and repassing all the time. One night there came up a little shower that raised the levee maybe a half inch. One of 'em got out of the channel, slid ashore and grounded in the mud right beside the courthouse."

"It was there the next morning, and I remarked to a brother attorney that that boat was aground to stay. He was from 'Egypt' and knew more about 'Pittsburgers' than I did. He merely smiled and said, 'You wait and see.'"

"There came on another shower that afternoon. I heard an engine puffing and looked out of the courthouse window. Maybe you'll think I'm exaggerating, but there was that boat steaming down the road toward the river, and in two minutes she was back in the Ohio, just as the shower was over. 'I expressed my surprise to the judge, but he said that was nothing. If the shower hadn't come up in time, the captain would simply have hired a boy with a sprinkling pot to go ahead. They're great boats, sergeant. Likely as not this one got here by coming across country.'"

President Lincoln repeated this extravagant story without the ghost of a smile. During his recent Secretary Stanton and General Halleck and Sherman—the last named having run up the day before from his march through the Carolinas—who were with the party, had approached the president. General Sherman smiled broadly, but Stanton looked annoyed. The president caught his glance and, with a wink at the others, said, "But maybe you're hearing this before, Stanton."

"Very likely," he said, "the secretary grimly responded, 'but I would suggest, Mr. President, that General Grant is awaiting you.'"

The gleam of amusement left the kindly man's eyes. He gravely turned and shook hands with the sergeant and then strode after his companions as they made their way ashore.—Roe L. Hendrick in Youth's Companion.

It Rained Copper.

The cadets of Annapolis sat in the side aisles of the chapel, leaving the center aisles for the officers and their families, says Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brundage in "Under Top's and Tents."

When the offering was received, the two boys charged with the duty of passing the plates did not make the slightest effort to circulate them among the cadets, for we never had any money. They would walk rapidly down the aisle and then come deliberately up the middle, gathering thence what they could. One Sunday the chaplain announced that he would preach a missionary sermon the next Sunday. It did not have the ordinary effect in emptying the church, for we were obliged to go as usual.

During the week it occurred to the bright mind of a senior, or first class man, who is now a prominent New York financier, that it would be well for the cadets to make an offering. So he sent out to the bank on Saturday morning and succeeded in smuggling in over 300 copper cents, which he distributed 1 cent per boy to the Episcopal battalion. He stationed a strong, long armed man on the outside of the first pew in each aisle.

The chaplain made a piteous appeal for pennies even, and when the astonished cadets who passed the plates started on their perfunctory promenade the strong, one armed men aforesaid promptly relieved them of the metal plates, and each one dropped in one copper cent with an ominous crash and then deliberately handed the plate to the next boy, who did the same thing. It rained copper cents for about ten minutes. The chaplain was dreadfully disconcerted, the officersidgeted and looked aghast. Some of them laughed, and the cadets preserved a deadly solemnity. The affair was a striking success.

A Pigeon

SCOOP ON FOREIGN VENDORS.

Deputy Constable Higgins made a raid this week on the vendors who cross the line from Amador and do business in this county without paying the requisite license. Among those held up were the Jackson, baker, Sutter Creek brewer, Jackson soda man and Jackson wine man. Each of these paid his license, together with the costs of court, so the result is clear profit for this county.—Calaveras Chronicle.

No doubt the above named constable flattered himself that he was doing a smart thing, in the interest of his county and of himself, when he made this profitable raid on foreigners. But, probably, he may be disposed to modify his judgment, and come to the conclusion that his action is liable to pile up a heap of trouble, both for himself and his bossmen. Nor is it so very clear that the final outcome of this ultra officiousness will be profitable for his sister county. It will be noticed that the item from our contemporary mentions no names. Simply the business in which each party mulcted in costs is given; but it will be noted that the character of each business mentioned makes it more than probable that the individuals, when they were rounded up by the over-zealous guardian of the law, were simply engaged in disposing of their own manufactured goods. The facts of the case are about as follows: A. Piccardo and Marre Bros. both wholesale dealers in liquors; Frank Podesta, manufacturer of soda water, etc.; John Radatz, the brewer of Sutter Creek; F. Giudi, one of the bakers of Jackson and A. Cassana, merchant of Jackson Gate, were arrested at Paloma at various times last week for selling without a license. Rather than stand trial, they all paid the license fee demanded, together with the costs; most if not all paying under protest. With the license and costs of court, the sums paid ranged between $15 and $25. We are informed that the constables' fees in the Podesta case, for traveling between Mokelumne Hill and Paloma, amounted to $9. A week or so before, F. Cademartori, the other baker of Jackson, who has been supplying bread to residents of Mokelumne Hill for years, was told he would have to pay a license of $5 per month or quit his business relations with that burg. He concluded to quit.

We have been unable to secure a copy of the license ordinances of Calaveras county. We, therefore, cannot say whether the local laws furnish even the shadow of authority for the action of the justice's court in these cases. But we are prepared to state that the ordinances of Amador county—and they are about as liberal and oppressive on the subject of licensing outside traders as any county can furnish—would not sanction such an outrageous interference with trade conditions as is involved in the conduct of the Calaveras officials. We know not whether, in their eagerness to make a few dollars out of their "foreign" victims, the township officers neglected to get the sanction of the legal adviser of the county before making the plunge that seemingly caught so many from Amador county in the meshes of the law. But we have no hesitation in expressing the opinion that the Calaveras authorities have not only outraged public sentiment, but have also overstepped their legal bounds; and furthermore that their course will not be sustained on appeal by any court of record in the State.

It is a well recognized principle that our system of government does not sanction the interposition of any barriers against the free interchange of products between the several states. Not only the federal, but also state and county, lawmakers recognize this limitation upon their powers. And notwithstanding the arbitrary action in the cases under discussion, the Calaveras officers who are responsible therefor will not attempt knowingly to array themselves in opposition to this fundamental principle. The bakers of Jackson are not required by the laws of their own county to pay a license for the privilege of making bread. And this product of their labor they can ship to the uttermost corners of the United States without being subject to a license charge. The manufacturers of soda water in Jackson can send their goods to San Francisco or New York without consulting a license collector. The same will apply to the wholesale liquor dealers. Wholesalers in all parts of the United States are sending their goods into Calaveras county without taking out a county license. But because a manufacturer in Jackson or Sutter Creek crosses the borders of Calaveras on a business proposition, and instead of sending his product by rail or freight train, delivers the goods in person to his customers, he is pounced upon by a constable, and commanded to pay or go to jail. The Calaveras butcher or baker may come into Amador county and transact all the business he can care up without being molested. As a matter of fact, vegetable peddlers from Mokelumne Hill make regular visits here, and probably sell more of their produce on the Amador side than they do in their own county, and nothing is said about license. But if our gardeners invade our neighbor's territory they are speedily held up for license money. Even from the standpoint of self-interest it is not sound policy to thus endeavor to erect a tariff wall to exclude all dealings with the outsider. The outsider can easily retaliate—if it were legal to do so—by building a counter wall. It is time this absurd and unprofitable border warfare was terminated. We hail the crisis that has been precipitated by the deputy constable of Mokelumne Hill as the beginning of the end of this crusade. We hope the business men of Amador, who have been so signally set upon as it were, will stand shoulder to shoulder, and fight this matter into the court of last resort, if need be. The principle of free interchange of products is worth contending for, to the extent of a final settlement by the highest tribunal of the state.

NEW QUARTERS.

The machinery of the Ledger office was moved into its new quarters over Newman's livery stable last week, and last week's paper was printed in the new office. The machinery was moved and the overhead fixtures put in by A. H. Kuhlman. The water power was changed from the old to the new place by Mr. Forsyth, the water wheel being placed on the same floor as the presses. Every thing ran like clock-work. It was thought by some that the elevation of 16 feet might reduce the power to such an extent that it would be found impracticable to operate the news press with the reduced pressure. But the power proved ample. The press was overhauled by L. A. Kent, the blacksmith and machinist, and to his mechanical skill we are in a great measure indebted for the fact that it runs smoother and faster than it has done for years. Indeed, it is almost equal to its work in its best days.

The work of moving a newspaper and job outfit like the Ledger's is enormous. It will take several weeks before we get straightened out. In addition we this week discard the patent outside, and return to the all home print plan. We found the pressure upon our advertising space too great to admit of the continuance of the patent outside. With all our columns again under control, we hope to be able to devote more space to local happenings, and thereby give better satisfaction to our readers. Without any exaggeration, the Ledger can now boast of having the most commodious office, and also the most complete newspaper and job outfit to be found anywhere in the mountain counties of California. We shall be pleased to greet our old acquaintances, and hope to make many new ones, in our new home.

Tuolumne county gives an extra liberal interpretation to the law authorizing the board of supervisors to appropriate money in advertising the resources of the county with the view of inducing immigration. There should be no lack of immigrants if starting individuals in business is the program. The following order appears in the minutes of the supervisors of that county:

In the matter of purchasing descriptive pamphlets of Tuolumne county with a view of inducing immigration, O. F. Greely, having completed a pamphlet referring to the county, it was ordered that the county of Tuolumne purchase from O. F. Greely 2000 copies of the said edition. The county auditor was ordered to draw his warrants in favor of Greely for $2000, $1000 payable in 60 days from date hereof.

It is a question whether the legislature, in changing the law so that counties and incorporated cities are permitted to license all kinds of business for regulation only, and not for "regulation and revenue," as the law formerly stood, has not wiped out the entire license system as a source of income. There is no doubt the oppressive, and practically prohibitory licenses are knocked out. There is more trouble and friction over licenses than all other departments of the government put together. The lawyers are flooding the state with circulars addressed to saloon men, offering to fight the license system to a knock-out or no pay.

The experiment of sprinkling the Ione and Sutter Creek roads with water is voted a failure. Thousands of dollars have been spent before this conviction fastened itself upon those having charge of the matter. Not enough water can be got on the roads for the money available to keep down the dust. If this be so, the sooner the water sprinkling is abandoned and the remaining funds applied in a more useful channel, the better. Oil is now thought to hold out the promise of success as a road maker. It is worthy of a fair trial. Let us hope the county will not be committed too deeply at the outset, as in the water business. A contract for a mile or half a mile of roadway, treated by the most approved methods recommended by those having experience in such matters, would settle the practicability of the process at very little cost.

The entire plant of the Republican office, stored in the Spagnoli building opposite the hall of records, was moved into the new Ledger quarters this week. The entire room where it was stored has been rented by Geo. I. Wright for his abstract business.

W. H. Davis and Mrs. Lavinia, photographic artists, who have been doing some artistic work in Jackson and vicinity, left for Sutter Creek last Saturday. They have opened a photographic gallery in that town; also ice cream and candy. We can recommend them to the people of Sutter as reliable and capable, and have no doubt they will meet with substantial encouragement in their line of business from the residents of our sister town.

The addition to the county hospital is getting along smoothly. Mr. Mulcahy of Stockton, is doing the brick-laying, no idle tradesman in that line could be found in the county willing to tackle the job. The building has reached the height of the second floor. It is thought that the supply of brick will run short. If so it is the intention to test down the main building, used as a kitchen in connection with the old hospital, and use the brick in the new structure. This will surely give enough material to complete the work.

A. Ratto was down from the Standard Electric works at McLane camp last Monday, looking up carpenters to go to work there. There are from 40 to 50 carpenters and helpers employed in building the flumes there, and they want ten or twelve more men. He was unable to find any unemployed men hereabouts. The work of building the flumes is about one half through with. Putting the boxes together will be the last thing done, on account of the sun being liable to split and shrink the lumber if it was exposed for any length of time before the water was turned in.

At the last meeting of the Jackson fire company, the proposition of laying a large main pipe from the ditch and running the entire length of the business portion of Main street, was discussed. Such a line, if laid, would be used exclusively for fire purposes, and no hose, other than the fire company's, would be permitted to connect with it during a fire. The late fire has conclusively shown how helpless and unprotected the town is in the presence of a great conflagration. Every body within a quarter of a mile of the fire gets out a hose and turns on the water, and the result is an impotent stream is at the disposal of the firemen to extinguish the flames. The only remedy is an independent main. Of course this would involve a heavy expense, and that is just the sticking point.

Miss Diana Argall of San Francisco, who for some time has been visiting her friend Miss Grace Clough, returned home last Tuesday.

Toilet articles of all kinds and at all prices at Kerr's Pharmacy, Main street, Jackson. Try them and you won't be disappointed.

Mrs. J. Goring, accompanied by her daughter Eunice, left for Los Gatos last Saturday, to visit her sister. She also intends to visit Santa Cruz. She expects to be away six weeks.

Only the most thorough and competent druggists employed; those who never make a mistake in compounding prescriptions, at Kerr's Pharmacy, Main street, Jackson.

E. S. Petois and three children started for Silver Lake last Monday. They will visit several other resorts in the mountains, and expect to be gone about a month.

Henry Harris, commissary of the Preston school at Ione, and formerly of Murphy's, has been appointed by Supt. Gordon, a school trustee, for Ione school district.

Zack Kirkwood and family left for their mountain home at Kirkwood this week, to open their summer business there. The season is very backward in the mountains this year.

More than 101 telephones are in use in Jackson at this time, being an increase of more than twenty-five in six months, while Sutter Creek has 87 phones, an increase of sixteen in the same time. These figures are obtained from A. S. Moore, the repair man, and are therefore correct.

George Eberhardt, of the Jackson brewery, met with a singular accident on Tuesday night. He was stooping down to lace his shoe, when he slipped and fell on the sidewalk, sustaining a compound dislocation of his right thumb. Dr. Endicott was called up at midnight to dress his injuries.

The supervisors of Tuolumne county have established the following as the maximum rates for livery hire in conveying prisoners from the several judicial townships to the county seat: One horse and buggy, per day, $2.50; 2 horses and buggy, $4; 2 horses and surr, $5.

Dr. Herrick, owing to the increase of his extensive practice, has placed another operating chair in his office, and has secured the services of an old classmate, Dr. P. C. Erhardt, who is demonstrator of operative dentistry of the dental department of the U. C., to assist him during the summer.

The value of the Ledger as an advertising medium was strikingly illustrated last week. Mr. Nichols, the peddler, sold in Jackson a gold and platinum watch chain, with lock attached. He put a four line ad in the Ledger, and before the carrier was half way round with the paper, the finder was up in the office, ready to surrender the lost article to the owner.

Patrick Kilbourne and J. P. Morrill, who beat Manuel Garibaldi so badly about ten days ago, were brought before Justice H. Goldner last Saturday. They pleaded guilty to battery. Garibaldi was sentenced to one hundred and sixty days, while Morrill got one hundred and fifty days. Garibaldi was not able to appear in court, not having sufficiently recovered from his injuries. The attack was entirely unprovoked, and the thugs are lucky to get off so light.

W. Prouty, the teamster of Ione, was arrested on Wednesday on complaint of Emanuel Garibaldi, for complicity in the attack made upon him on the south fork road some two weeks ago. The two Mexicans previously arrested pleaded guilty to battery, and said that Prouty took no hand in it. Garibaldi, however, says he knows he struck him, and swore to a complaint against Prouty. Constable Kay arrested him as he was passing through town. He gave bonds, for his appearance, and was liberated.

Subscribers to the Ledger who are entitled to certificates in $15000 Press Publishing Association's contest, will please send in their estimate of the vote. We have to forward the stubs of the tickets to the head office before Aug. 10, to entitle them to participate in the contest for the special prize for the nearest estimate up to that date. We have already forwarded the stubs of tickets issued before July 10. Send in your guesses at once.

J. Herbert, who was struck over the head with a club at the Tabard resort three weeks ago, and was around Jackson with a bandaged head place for several days, returned to work at the Spring Gulch camp last week. He took a cold, which went to the head; erysipelas set in, and the company's physician was called. He found his condition so serious that he recommended him to go to the county hospital. He was brought to that institution on Tuesday.

CHINATOWN AGAIN

Attempt Made to Blow Up a Building.

Such Proceedings are Denounced by All Good Citizens, who Hope the Perpetrators be Caught.

The slumbering residents of Jackson were startled about one o'clock Thursday morning by a loud explosion, accompanied by the sound of falling timbers. It proved to be a dastardly effort to blow up a frame building that was in process of erection on the site of the lately destroyed Chinatown. It was being built by the Chinese storekeeper, who at the time of the explosion was absent in San Francisco.

Since the fire there has been considerable talk about the Chinese rebuilding. Some steps were made toward buying the lots, but these came to naught. Nevertheless, there was a strong feeling manifested against the upbuilding of another Chinatown on the main business street, and the great bulk of the property holders would have sanctioned any legal methods to avert such a calamity. A few days ago, a frame building—a fac simile of the old structures—was commenced in the very center of the Chinese area of the burned district. To get rid of this, and probably to scare them from further efforts to rebuild, the dynamite plot was devised and executed. It was so bunglingly done, however, as to almost totally fail of its purpose. Four sticks of giant powder were selected as the instruments of destruction. The building stood several feet from the ground. A stick of powder was placed on the floor at each corner. The one at the north east corner exploded, and caused the racket that startled the town. It blew a hole about one by three feet in flooring, and shattered one of the floor joists somewhat, also loosened a number of the boards on the sides, but left the building practically intact.

The sides of the building were all up, but no roof on. The other three sticks of powder failed to explode, and therefore the complete collapse of the structure was avoided. Two of the caps, however, went off. The party or parties who undertook this dangerous business had evidently got nervous, and had after simply firing the long fuses, without waiting long enough to insure an explosion. As it was the shock of the explosion blew out the glass in the windows across the street—Miss Cass's millinery establishment, and the undertaking parlor—which had previously been cracked by the heat of the fire. Nearly every nail driven in the dynamited building was loosened.

This midnight attack upon property by means of dynamite is condemned on all sides. The Chinese interested have been sending messages to San Francisco about the affair. It is reported that the matter will be laid before the Chinese consul in San Francisco, with the view of taking action to obtain redress. While there is a good deal of idle talk going on, we cannot hear of anything being accomplished in hastening this crime upon the guilty parties. It is freely mooted around that the circumstances are such that it would not require extraordinary detective skill to get to the bottom of this business. The dynamite process of getting rid of real or imaginary rivals cannot be countenanced in an intelligent community. The hand that fired the bomb against Chinese property on July 20, will have little regard for other property. In any event, the Chinese man's property is entitled to the same protection of law as the white man's.

It is rumored that detectives in the employ of the Chinese are to be sent here to ferret out this plot. Let them come, and if they come, we hope the citizens, for the reputation of the town, will render them the assistance they can in getting to the bottom of this crime.

Let There Be Peace.

Amador Ledger:

It was once written "Let sleeping dogs lie." That was long before the day Amador county sported a court house, supervisors or janitor. The idea was good then, and it seems to be so now.

One organization has already gone on record with the ancient motto bequeathed us by primitive man "To the victors belong the spoils"—"a motto terminated by modern civil service. Partisanship is excellent, and the wheel of victory, as the homogeneity of the democratic party has often proved to our sorrow. But, at times, it may be unpolitic to strip the defeated warrior, leave him naked upon the field and publicly wrangle for his last garment; although to do so quietly as a reward to the rank and file, is a recognized asset of political warfare.

1901 is well waded with the "spoils" that be" have made their policy understood and right or wrong, the janitor question should have long ago been well asleep. It is wisdom to stir up that sleeping dog with kicks, or rather, leave him alone to accept the inevitable for peace sake, and let the slumbering question sleep; that the campaign of '92 may be a true copy of that of '90.

The supervisors of Tuolumne county have employed Mr. Holland to collect money due that county from the state for the support of orphans and half orphans, on a commission of 25 per cent of all the money collected by him and paid into the treasury. We have no official opinion of the usefulness of the cinch measures under which such claims are foisted upon the state, but inasmuch as other counties are getting into line on this proposition, would it not be well if Amador county looked into the matter with the view of ascertaining if we also have not some bill against the state on the same proposition.

Chris Marella has disposed of an interest in the Jackson Cash grocery store in Court street, to Wm. McFarland, and upon the advice of his physician, will visit some medicinal springs. We hope Mr. Marella will return completely restored to health. Mr. McFarland is a young man of excellent qualifications, and will no doubt, become popular with the business world.

A Disgusting Show.

Last Tuesday evening a traveling fakir made his appearance in Jackson, driving a one horse wagon in which was standing a little girl, bare headed, while her hands and arms were covered with slimy, creeping, crawling snakes. The man was proclaiming that this girl was only six years old, and that it was her delight to handle those snakes; that she loved her work and preferred the snakes as playthings to anything else. He announced that the child and her snakes would give a performance at the north end of Main street, where they had put up a small tent. When the crowd assembled at this tent they found that besides the snake performance they were expected to contribute to several side issues, one of which was a dollar each to have Queen May the "Romany Gypsy" tell their fortunes. Another game was throwing balls into a hole in a barrel at three throws for a nickel. Word was carried to the sheriff and he went to the show ground and found the game in full blast. He at once placed the show man, who gives his name as J. C. McGregor, under arrest, and caused him to pay license. McGregor made a great howl about the treatment accorded the justice and bonds fixed at $50. To the surprise of the officers, he promptly deposited the cash guarantee for his appearance, employed a lawyer, and demanded a jury trial.

The following night he prepared to start business again; this time he proposed to go through with the snake performance himself. The sheriff says the child was with him, and this was sufficient to cause the law to be again run out for the "stranger." It was eight o'clock; a justice's court was no further from the scene of arrest than the county jail, and the law requires that a person accused of crime be taken before a magistrate without unnecessary delay. The man found his way to the county jail, and did not reach the justice before the following morning. He thereupon withdrew his former cash bail, concluding that he might just as well be jailed for the double charge as for a single one. His snakes are enjoying the hospitality of the jail too. A case of "snakes in the house" is not an uncommon occurrence within the four walls of a jail. But the genuine article—a fully developed reptile menagerie—with the trainer himself is now quartered upon the Amador public. The fortune teller and child, separated from their main support, are walking the streets, waiting for the outcome of this legal trial. A record of three arrests of the same person within 48 hours is phenomenal. No wonder Jackson has a reputation on the outside of being a lively town—judged from the standpoint of the number of arrests. We reserve comment until after the trial, which is set for Monday morning. While some will condemn the man for his crime, there are not wanting those who place a totally different construction upon it; and that too without in any way upholding these men for their peculiar and repulsive business.

Matured Stock.

Judge H. C. Rust and Richard Webb received notice from the Pacific States Building and Loan Society of San Francisco last week, that their shares in that organization would mature with the July payment, and that the par value of their stock would be payable at the office in San Francisco on July 20. We believe this is the first notification of the maturing of stock received by shareholders in Jackson. The above named persons became members in September, 1891. There were many others in this town who subscribed for shares at the same time; but from one cause and another nearly all dropped out, realizing on their stock before it matured.

It has taken ten years, lacking one payment, for the stock to mature. It was stated at the outset that the shares would mature in seven years, which would give fully 11 per cent per month on the money invested. This was too good a promise to be true, and in these days of flush money and low interest, maturing in ten years, the members receive one hundred dollars on a total payment of a trifle over $70 per share. The rate of interest is much better in fact than can be had by depositing in any savings bank. The Pacific States Building Association is one of the soundest and best conducted organizations on the coast.

The following are the teachers assigned to different districts so far as officially reported to the county superintendent of schools:

SUTTER CREEK.

SUTTER CREEK, July 18.—Senator Voorhies had his right hand burnt people badly this morning, while handling some oil at the Lincoln mine. There is not much doing in the town of Sutter Creek at present, as the different mines are not running in full blast, but the prospects look very good for the future.

The Native Daughters of Amapola Parlor will hold their installation of officers to-night at their lodge room.

The Native Daughters of Amapola Parlor will be given a real treat by Carrie Clare, under the auspices of Amapola lodge, will present the spectacular operetta, "Golden Hair and The Three Bears." The cast will contain about forty voices, whose names will appear in a later issue.

Being a stranger in this town it is rather hard to get much news until I am better acquainted.

The Company Satisfied.

Destructive Fire Averted at Volcano. Personal Mention of Amador City People.

VOLCANO, July 17.—A delightful farewell party was given last Friday evening in Armory hall in honor of Mrs. Dillon and Miss Francis Casinelli, who returned to the city next morning after spending the summer at their old home.

What might have proved a very destructive forest fire broke out near town last Thursday. It originated, or rather was started, directly in town, and was due to the gross carelessness of a house owner burning rubbish around it. It is now in less than three days to tell, the fire got beyond control and spread over the long dry grass on rocky hills like on a powder trail. It took every available hand around town the best part of the day to circumscribe it and prevent serious damage. Only the loss of a few fences and some cattle feed and timbers are to be deplored. Great indignation was freely expressed over the thoughtlessness of the person responsible for the fire. It is so easy to take a few common sense precautions such as the gravity of the interests at stake demand. Even if no serious damage resulted, it is a disgrace to have a fire with the sun at a temperature of 90°.

Messrs. A. Grillo, C. Bradshaw, M. Christenson and John Clark returned Monday from a short fishing trip to the lake near Volcano. They were captured about 10 miles from the lake. The fish did not seem to bite very lively, but they say they had a top time though they appeared to be somewhat tired.

Ed. Mielert and W. Boydston went to the city of Sacramento, where they undergo an examination in pharmacy.
